The Betelberg harbours a fascinating site with extraordinary scenery: the "Gryden". The catchphrase for the Gryden high-altitude circular trail: Hike - marvel - enjoy!

This hike starts off from the Betelberg gondola lift ("Leiterli"). The first section of the mountain trail leads along the "Leiterli" alp circular trail on which walkers will encounter an interesting mix of unique information and adventure stations. The path leads mostly along flat or slightly undulating ground towards Steinstoss. On the first section, the trail affords a magnificent view of the "Haslerberg Moorland", a protected moorland that has been listed since 1996 in the Federal Inventory of Mire Landscapes of Particular Beauty and National Importance.

The finest Alpine cheese is produced on and around the Steinstoss alp. From here onwards, path becomes narrower and offers up a breathtaking view of what is probably the most beautiful valley closure in the Alps. Then, the path leads over the "Stüblieni" limestone formation in a short, steeper climb. A bizarre "Gryden" crater-like, rocky landscape spreads out on its northern side. The extraordinarily rocky landscape in the Stübli region is not only fascinating for geologists and biologists, but for everyone who finds themselves enthralled by a unique landscape. Its highest point gives you an unbelievable panoramic view that, in clear weather, extends from the Simmental across the Saanenland to the beautiful mountainous regions around Freiburg. The path now leads down to the turning point of this circular hike. At the turning point, undertaking a short side trip toward the "Schutzhütte" (mountain refuge) is worthwhile. Stop, take a deep breath and enjoy is the catchphrase now. It's best to stop briefly to fully appreciate and take in the crater-like landscape which resembles the moon's surface. The path to the mountain shelter winds its way past these depressions. If you decide to venture along this additional loop, you will need surefootedness and a head for heights. If you continue along the path, you will reach the Trütli Pass which is the gateway to the Saanenland.

Having returned to the turning point, the southern portion of the Gryden circular trail again leads back to Steinstoss. On the last section of the trail from Steinstoss to the top station of the Betelberg gondola lift, you will have the option of finishing the Leiterli alp circular trail or making a side trip along the original Alpine flower trail. The Alpine flower trail on the Leiterli allows you to experience a natural diversity of plants that is rare to encounter now. Especially in July, when Alpine roses blossom and up to 70 other Alpine flowers are in bloom, the Alpine flower trail becomes a feast for the eyes.

Having returned to the starting point of the hike, a host of different attractions of the Betelberg Alpine experience await to be discovered by young and old. The Leiterli mountain hotel with its large sun terrace invites you to linger after the rigours of this circular hike. A delicious afternoon snack platter or an Alpine herb soup will become well-deserved sustenance.
