The playground is situated beneath the Goethe Tower. The park's playground, featuring a variety of apparatuses and an extra-long slide, provides plenty of fun for youngsters of all ages. A paddling pool offers welcome relief from the summer heat. Toilets are available and there's a kiosk in the restaurant.

The forest play park with its wide range of play equipment such as swings, slides, climbing tower, wooden maze and small huts offers a great place for the little ones. It is an oasis framed by tall trees, yet can be reached in just 10 minutes by bus from the Südbahnhof and also has parking. A restaurant can be used for leisurely breaks.

The water play park and mud dock are a highlight, especially in warm weather.

The Goetheturm is one of the highest wooden observation towers in Germany and offers a magnificent view of the Frankfurt GrünGürtel, the skyline - and in good weather - of the entire RheinMain area. The climb is well worth it.

The new Goetheturm is open annually between 01.04. and 31.10. and remains closed in autumn and winter for safety reasons.
