Big Apple on the Lohrberg: on Frankfurt's local mountain, you can enjoy cider right where the apples grow.

Perhaps the people of Frankfurt love their cider so much because it's such a great conversation starter. The MainÄppelHaus at the top of the 185-metre-high Lohrberg is a particularly good place to do this. The path here leads through the city's most beautiful orchards, and a common theme quickly emerges: apples and everything that can be made from them. Because at the non-profit MainÄppelHaus, everything revolves around fruit. The facility includes a two-hectare garden, which is home to numerous old and new apple varieties, as well as cherries, pears and berries. The farm store sells everything that can be produced from orchard fruit, from jam to fruit brandy. And of course you can also try the cider here: the Äppel-Bistro serves home-made cider, delicious snacks and such a wonderful view over Frankfurt that it's easy to strike up a conversation.
