New life for hit golf balls. Birdiehook is an upcycling art project. Golf balls with experience reveal their inner beauty.

Cutting golf balls in half is like children's surprise for adults. Even identical ball models are quite different in their coloring over the different seasons. The surfaces of the split balls captivate with immeasurable variety: from powdery smooth to mineral texture, every variation can be found. The designer arranges golf ball halves in her design objects. Some of the balls are so amazing and unique that it was natural to photograph them. These photographs are reproduced as Finartprints and are part of the exhibition.
