"To feel the sun we need the rain."

Pentastone deal with heavy themes and feelings in their music without losing hope. This emotional complexity is also reflected in their sound. They themselves define their music as "modern alternative", which includes elements of metal, rock and electro.

In 2021, the young band released their debut album "Stuck In The Sky" with the aim of creating mental health awareness. Over the years, Pentastone have built up a nationwide community in which inclusion is a top priority: "And I hope that you finally know that here your heart has found a home."

After Pentastone took a harder path with the single "Break My Back" in early 2024, "Pink Pullover" sounds refreshingly new. The song moves forward, surprises with poppy verses and is particularly danceable thanks to electronic elements. A hefty breakdown provides the necessary toughness. "Pink Pullover" is about toxic relationships and the way out of destruction.
