

Fisch-Hof – Sushi Bar

restaurant

In the heart of the Belgian Quarter is Fisch-Hof, an unassuming restaurant at first glance that originally opened in 1996 as a fishmongers with a sushi bar attached. Fisch-Hof has become well-known across the city thanks to both its repeated TV appearances and its high-quality, moderately priced sushi. The interior is simple and traditional, with lots of wood panelling. The sushi is fresh, prepared before the diners' eyes behind the counter. There's a traditional range of maki variations on the menu, plus a number of affordable lunch menus. While the fishmonger's is no more, Fisch-Hof also sells sushi equipment for customers who'd like to try their hand at sushi at home.

Price level: Ura maki EUR 4.50 to EUR 11
