

Creative marble run

Creative

The aim is the joint development and construction of a functioning ball track system.

A creative interface construction project. Each track is unique.

First, several teams prepare sections of the marble run. These sections are then put together and have to pass the "hot test". For this to work, close communication and coordination between the teams involved is necessary during the construction phase. During construction, various criteria and rules must be observed in the individual teams and in the group as a whole. The tasks are challenging: for example, a loop must be integrated and the ball must make a "jump".

Creativity and innovative ideas are required.

Success lies in good coordination between all those involved with a view to the overall goal, without losing sight of their own task. The participants' ambition is sure to be awakened here!

Note: In contrast to the "Giant marble run" programme, this offer is aimed at smaller groups. The focus is on creativity and detailed solutions, while the giant marble run is more about looking at the "big picture".
