For experienced mountain walkers, the south-west ridge, visible from afar, is the optimal ascent to the highest peak in the foothills of the Alps; less experienced walkers can book this tour with a mountain guide in Grindelwald. Up to the steep ascent at Chrinneboden towards "Grossi Chrinne", the approach follows regular trails. From the ridge, you can often see the ladders shining in the sun. The first securing elements are already available on the ascent to Grossi Chrinne. After arriving on the ridge, you climb some ladders to a less steep part of the ridge, and along this to the summit.
