The park features extensive sunbathing lawns, a timeworn tree population, loop roads with timber bridges, arbours, a labyrinth, and a herb garden - a special educational allotment featuring bamboo, cooking herbs and medicinal plants.

At the beginning of the 20th century, when the East End was still a working-class district, Frankfurt's first public parklands were used to stage political rallies and demonstrations. The lake, an impressive four-hectare-large seascape encircled by reeds and willows, provides sanctuary for birds, fish and waterfowl of every variety.
